Legislative Counsel's Digest of Assembly Amendments

SB 457, as it passed the Senate, defined "in-kind services" for specified housing element purposes.

The Assembly amendments additionally require the Department of Housing and Community Development to promulgate or approve one or more formulas and associated user interfaces or other tools that allow for the determination of specified information, including, among other things, the realistic capacity of housing element inventory sites. The Assembly amendments specify various uses for which local governments may use these formulas for purposes of complying with specified housing element requirements. The Assembly amendments also require a local government's inventory of land suitable and available for residential development to specify the number of units allowed to be built on each site at the time of the housing element's adoption, and the number that will be allowed after rezoning to accommodate the city's or county's share of regional housing need.

The Assembly amendments delete the contents of the bill and instead revise and recast the Low Carbon Transit Operations Program to, among other things, (1) repeal the requirement for the Department of Transportation to adopt program expenditure and reporting guidelines, and (2) require program funds to be expended only on maintenance or expansion of bus, rail, or ferry services, transit fare subsidies, and network and fare integration technology.

Legislative Counsel's Digest of Assembly Amendments

SB 1423, as it passed the Senate, required the California Transportation Commission to conduct a study and submit a report to the Legislature relating to the Department of Transportation's Active Transportation Program, as specified.

The Assembly amendments instead require the Office of Land Use and Climate Innovation (Office), on or before July 1, 2028, to compile, standardize, maintain, and make publicly available a core set of statewide standardized spatial planning datasets, as specified. The Assembly amendments would require the Office, on or before January 1, 2029, to develop and provide guidance for agencies on how to use and integrate the datasets in regional planning processes and products. The Assembly amendments would also require the Office to update those datasets and would permit state, regional, and local governments to use the datasets in land use and infrastructure plans. The Assembly amendments include legislative findings and declarations relating to climate change, land use, and spatial planning datasets.

S.B. No. 1168—McNerney et al.

An act relating to energy.

Legislative Counsel's Digest of Assembly Amendments

SB 1168, as it passed the Senate, required the Public Utilities Commission, as part of a new or existing proceeding, to assess opportunities for rate structures to (1) ensure data centers pay their reasonable share of costs associated with transmission and distribution needs, (2) identify mechanisms to ensure that data centers pay for their proportionate share of load increases and procurements needed to reliably serve their loads using nonemitting resources, and (3) structure rates to alleviate cost pressures on residential ratepayers, including, but not limited to, customers enrolled in the California Alternate Rates for Energy program and the Family Electric Rate Assistance program.

The Assembly amendments make a grammatical change and, with regard to (2), above, require the commission to instead assess opportunities for rate structures to ensure data centers pay for their proportionate share of load increases and procurements needed to reliably serve their loads while maintaining consistency with the applicable integrated resource planning requirements.
